HALLOWEEN AT THE HISTORIC OREGON CITY SCHOOLHOUSE

There's a little town growing,
Just in back of the school.
With witches and fairies
And even a ghoul

Yes its that time of year
For you to get dressed
And join us for dinner
As our special guest

There'll be candy like crazy
And children abound
We can't wait to see you
In our little town

12 Women that History Has Forgotten

A Program by Lee Dummell, Old West Historian

Saturday, October 17th, 1:30 pm at the BCHS Museum
1749 Spencer Avenue, Oroville Ca.

Join us on October 17th as Lee Dummell provides a brief history of each of twelve remarkable women of the old west whose contributions to our heritage have been mostly forgotten.

Soiled doves, soldiers or stage drivers, they all deserve to have their story told and to be remembered for their tenacity and determination as they navigated life through a world defined by wild country and wilder men.

Admission is by donation ($5 suggested) and refreshments will be available.

We hope to see you there!

Tea Time at the Oregon City Schoolhouse

A Fun Time Was Had By All!

Fall Is Time For the Hunt and Harvest

Near Gridley, Ca. circa 1920's

The hunters in the above picture appear to have had a very good day. From a 21st century perspective, the photo screams "market hunting" but in reality given the number of hunters and the generous bag limits of the time (25 birds per person per day) they may be within the bounds of their daily take.

By 1926, when the attached article was published in the San Francisco Examiner, the overly generous federal bag limit of 25 birds had become a point of contention amongst outdoorsmen, with many calling for the states to lower their limits to 15 or maybe even 10 birds per day.

The columnist who published this article in the December 26, 1926 S.F. Examiner was quoting directly from Outdoor Life Magazine.

OUR VANISHING DUCKS.

"Sportsmen of America, the time has arrived when we must have more action and less talk if our migratory birds—and ducks particularly—are to be saved from complete annihilation. That they have been decreasing in alarming numbers from year to year and still are decreasing, is an indisputable fact.

"For years we have been witnessing a marked diminution in the supply of migratory birds, and urging sportsmen, game commissioners and conservative societies, both State and national, to lend a helping hand toward betterment of conditions, that these feathered friends may exercise their God-given right to exist and propagate their species for posterity. We owe it to them, to ourselves, and to those who follow after us.

Harvesting wheat at the Entler Ranch. A large wheat field being worked by a threshing machine pulled by 18 mules. Next to it is a flat bed wagon piled with sacks of grain, pulled by four mules.

This grain harvesting combine is being pulled by a steam driven tractor. By the looks of the tractor wheels conditions may be bit wet in that field and they appear to be moving towards high ground. .
